Key Macro is a software utility that lets you create keyboard macros. You can create a series of keyboard combinations which will be performed automatically when you press a key. First of all, you are asked to choose which application you want to use to set up the macros. In our tests, we used Key Macro 3.6.2 and we were offered to select from a list of predefined applications. Key Macro lets you create up to ten keyboard macros which can be activated in various ways: by pressing a specific key (for example, the "S" key), by clicking a button, by pressing the "Ctrl" and "Alt" keys simultaneously, or by clicking on a menu item. Moreover, this program lets you assign some special keyboard shortcuts to macros. With Key Macro you can save the macros in a number of file formats, including: XML, CSV, HTML, TXT and XML. Key Macro lets you monitor your macros in real time, since the application displays all the macro sequences you are performing. This feature can be very useful, as you can start a macro and monitor its execution while the program is active. Key Macro can also be used to create a macro that will lock the PC or even stop it. For example, if you press the "Ctrl" key, and then press the "Ctrl" key again, a message box pops up asking you to enter a password. If the correct password is entered, the screen will be locked until you enter the password again or close the program. Key Macro can also be used to control your Windows 8 lockscreen, since this utility can be started in the "Lock" section of the application's main menu. Key Macro features: · Generate a wide range of macros · A wide range of settings · Generate or import macros from various file types · Macro monitoring and live macro recording · File format selection · Basic macro editing · Templates · Minimalistic interface · Support for various languages · Support for various keyboard layouts · Support for various applications If you need a macro editor that lets you automate Windows key combinations, then you will certainly want to try Key Macro, a Windows utility that lets you create a series of keyboard shortcuts that will be executed automatically when you press a key.
