I tried it for the first time today. What I have to say: I like it a lot. I would only recommend to use the Paper (Paper-and-Pencil) mode and forget the Pencil.

I think this came due to its very first look: The interface is not the clean one Adobe made, I have to say. I am not really happy with the basic navigation. I also find the tools quite useless: I cannot merge layers, I can not layer-in view, I cannot make layer groups... all basic. I have only used the Paint Tool and the Text Tool and the Gradient Tool.

I will try it again, because I really want to use this and as you can see: but I have to use it extremely carefully and in the mode I like: paper-and-Pencil, because it's the most real thing for me. I guess you live in the picture... @Sart: Hi! I would be glad to help you with the importer.

-Is the.PSD importable?

-How is the performance?

-Which tool is really useful?

If you do not have the smart preview. Which tool is essential?

I think you'll like it Nice review as always. I use the corel portfolio. It's "Photoshop" on steroids: it's more cost effective than Photoshop.

I'll use it for my client work. I don't do pre-press work. I'll look at some of your notes After many hours testing this new product we are excited to report that the new update from the previous product is more than a simple refinement.
